RM Client Engagement

Process Guide & Logging Standard

Drawbridge • Relationship Management • Effective Immediately • March 2026

1. Overview

This guide defines how the Relationship Management team is expected to engage clients, what qualifies as a loggable interaction, and how to record it in Salesforce. These are not guidelines — they are the standard we are operating against, effective immediately.

The goal is straightforward: every client should hear from their RM regularly, those conversations should be reaching decision makers, and we should be able to prove it. This program exists because retention is under pressure and relationship depth is our primary lever.

2. The Weekly Expectation

> The Mandate
> Each RM is expected to complete 20 qualifying client interactions per week. These are RM-owned conversations — separate from CS delivery touchpoints. This is your relationship activity, not shared credit.

With approximately 100 accounts per RM, 20 interactions per week means you are cycling through your full book roughly once a month. That is the floor, not the ceiling.

Activity is logged in Salesforce using the Client Touchpoint object and reviewed by Chris every Friday as part of the weekly rollup. Starting immediately, weekly activity is a standing agenda item.

3. What Counts as a Qualifying Interaction

A qualifying interaction is a completed, two-way exchange. Outreach attempts do not count. The four recognized activity types are:

Activity Type	Qualifies When...	Does NOT Count As
Call	You had a live conversation with the contact	Voicemail left, call not returned, no answer
Email	The client replied to your outreach	Email sent with no reply received

Activity Type	Qualifies When...	Does NOT Count As
Meeting	A scheduled meeting took place with the client present	Meeting declined, no-show, or rescheduled
Onsite Visit	You were physically at the client's office and met with a contact	Visit planned but cancelled or contact unavailable

If you are unsure whether something qualifies: if a real conversation happened, log it. If you only attempted contact, do not log it as a touchpoint — note it in your own tracking and follow up.

---

4. Who You Should Be Talking To

The target contact at every client is an executive — the person with budget authority or strategic oversight. Every interaction should either be with an exec or moving you toward one.

Tier	Who They Are	Your Goal
Tier 1 — Executive	CFO, COO, CTO, CCO, Managing Partner, Principal	This is the target. Build the relationship directly.
Tier 2 — Influencer	VP, Director, Senior Associate (budget-aware)	Valid interaction. Use to build a path to the exec.
Tier 3 — Coordinator	All others	Counts toward activity. Must show a path to exec in the log.

When you log a Tier 2 or Tier 3 interaction, Salesforce will require you to note your path to executive access for that account. This is not administrative overhead — it is your plan, in writing.

---

5. AI as Your Primary Outreach Hook

Right now, AI is the most natural reason to call any client. Every firm in our space is trying to figure out what AI means for their operations, their risk posture, and their vendor relationships. You have something real to offer on this topic.

> Your Opening Right Now
> Reach out to ask what your clients are doing with AI — what tools they're evaluating, what governance questions they're facing, what their investors are asking. Then share what Drawbridge is seeing across the industry and what our AI assessments can tell them about their own environment. This is a genuine conversation, not a pitch.

This outreach angle works across your full book. It is not renewal-specific and it is not reactive — it is you showing up as an informed partner at a moment when clients are actively looking for guidance.

A separate document with expanded AI outreach talking points, specific assessment messaging, and additional campaign angles is forthcoming. For now: pick up the phone, ask the question, and have the conversation.

---

6. Other Outreach Angles

AI is the primary hook right now, but it is not the only one. Use these as secondary reasons to engage:

- Check in and offer to connect clients with Chris, Eric, or another senior team member where the relationship warrants it: Introduce senior resources
- Straightforward: how are things going, what's changed at the firm, are there any concerns we should know about: Relationship check-in
- Reg S-P, ODD expectations, and AI governance are all active topics — use them where relevant to the client's profile: Regulatory landscape
- If a client has low platform engagement, a proactive call to understand why is both a retention move and a relationship-builder: Platform adoption

---

7. How to Log in Salesforce

Log every qualifying interaction as a Client Touchpoint in Salesforce. Do this same-day or within 24 hours. Do not batch log at the end of the week — timestamps matter for reporting integrity.

Required Fields

Field	What to Enter
Client Touchpoint Name	Use a consistent format: [Client Name] — [Activity Type] — [Date]. Example: Kensico Capital — Call — 03/24/26
Account	The client firm record
Status	Set to Completed for all qualifying interactions
Touchpoint Date	Date the interaction occurred (not the date you logged it)
Activity Type	Call, Email, Meeting, or Onsite Visit — see Section 3 for qualifying criteria
Client Contact Name	The individual you spoke with. If no contact record exists, enter their name and create the record within 24 hours.
Contact Tier	Tier 1 (Exec), Tier 2 (Influencer), or Tier 3 (Coordinator)
Outreach Direction	RM-Initiated if you reached out first. Client-Initiated if they contacted us.

Field	What to Enter
Path to Executive	Required for Tier 2 and Tier 3 contacts. Briefly describe how you will reach the decision maker at this firm.
Strategic Conversation	Brief note on what was discussed. One to two sentences is sufficient. Include any signals, concerns, or follow-ups.

> On Email Logging
> Email touchpoints will be cross-referenced weekly against Sturdy.ai email engagement data. Sturdy captures actual inbound and outbound email traffic by account. If you log an email touchpoint, there should be a corresponding reply in the thread. This is not about distrust — it is about having clean data we can stand behind at the board level.

---

8. Weekly Rhythm

Client engagement activity follows the existing team ROB cadence:

- Execute your 20 interactions for the week. Front-load earlier in the week — do not leave all 20 for Thursday: Monday–Thursday
- Salesforce touchpoints for the week should be fully logged before the Friday rollup: Friday morning
- Chris reviews weekly activity by RM: total touches, tier distribution, outreach direction breakdown, and any at-risk accounts with no recent contact: Friday rollup

If you are tracking below 20 in a given week, flag it proactively before Friday — do not wait for the review. If there is a legitimate reason (PTO, conference, etc.), note it. If there is not, have a plan.

---

9. What Good Looks Like

The bar is not just hitting 20. The bar is hitting 20 with the right people, for the right reasons, and capturing it in a way that tells a coherent story about your book.

Dimension	Strong	Needs Improvement
Volume	20+ interactions logged per week, consistently	Fewer than 20, or spikes followed by flat weeks
Contact Quality	Majority Tier 1 and Tier 2 contacts	Mostly Tier 3 with no path to exec documented
Outreach Mix	Primarily RM-initiated — you are driving the cadence	Majority client-initiated — you are responding, not leading

Dimension	Strong	Needs Improvement
Logging Quality	Same-day or next-day, clear strategic notes	Batch logged Friday, sparse or missing notes
AI Conversations	AI topic raised across new and existing clients weekly	AI outreach not initiated

10. Questions

If something is unclear about this standard, ask before the Friday rollup, not after. If you encounter edge cases — a client who insists on email only, a multi-contact meeting, a call that started as a check-in and became a strategy session — use your judgment and document it. The goal is accurate data, not perfect compliance theater.

Additional guidance on AI outreach messaging, campaign angles, and longer-term content strategy is in development and will be shared separately.